

An Embarrassing School Day

Today, after Mary had attended the last lesson before lunch, she rushed to the tuck shop like a cheetah hunting for its food. With no shock, she was the third to buy her lunch. When she was walking to the bench to eat her noodles, something horrible happened that left her embarrassed and shocked.

Someone spilled their water on the floor and she slipped. She landed flat on her butt with a huge thud. Everyone at the canteen looked at her. She was embarrassed and turned into a red tomato in no time. The sad part was when she was falling down, her noodles came flying into the air! And the soup of the noodles splashed all over her. She was wet and also had a strong curry scent all over her.

Everyone started surrounding her. Mary always wanted to be popular, but not in this way. Everyone started to laugh and point at her. At that time, she felt helpless and scared and wished for a miracle to happen. Then, a brave girl stood up for her and told everyone to back off and not to bother Mary. The girl helped Mary and Mary thought that the girl was a hero for standing up for her and helping her clean up herself and the mess on the ground. But the thing she didn't realize was that the change she got back from buying noodles fell to the ground and got blown up into the air by a gust of strong wind.

Another student saw the money! The student thought, "If I get the money, I can buy some snacks to share with my friends!" She let the bad thoughts take over her. When she thought that no one was watching her, she secretly grabbed the money and started to walk faster. But the girl that was helping Mary clean up saw the whole thing. She tried to stop the student, but the student started to run till she almost lost her breath and her legs were sore. The girl got the chance, she grabbed the bill from the student's hand and returned it to Mary. Mary thanked her and bought her a snack as a thank you. Meanwhile, the student got called to the teacher's office for stealing and subsequently got what she deserved.

Today was an embarrassing day, but Mary had also made a new friend. I don't think that she will forget this experience any time soon!
